Manville, NJ: The Arc of Somerset County's Jerry Davis Center for Children and Families (JDCCF) located in Manville will celebrate "National Schools Choice Week" (NSCW) January 22nd – 25th. NSCW was founded in 2011 to promote the concept of all forms of school choice. The mission of the Jerry Davis Center for Children and Families (JDCCF) is to ensure every individual's optimal growth and development. JDCCF's comprehensive, interdisciplinary programs are designed to meet the physical, cognitive, social, and emotional needs of children who have a diverse range of abilities.

The week of events is scheduled to consist of independently organized events, both large and small, in schools, state capitals, and other public meetings featuring the movement's signature yellow scarves. As an organization, it does not promote one form of educational choice over another, but rather contends that parents should have and make choices in the best interest of their children.

The Jerry Davis Center for Children and Families will kick off the week by hosting a Parent Appreciation Breakfast on Tuesday, January 22nd from 7:30am–10:00am. Then on Wednesday January 23rd the Manville Library will host a book display for the families of the JDCCF from 3:00pm– 6:00pm. On Thursday and Friday, January 24th – 25th, the center will host a Pajama party and book give away to the students throughout the day.

The Jerry Davis Center for Children and Families has been involved with NSCW for many years as it is the Director of Early Childhood Services goal to remind parents that they have a choice where they send their children to school and to show their appreciation for choosing the JDCCF.
